BE ON THE SAME PAGE,LITERALLY

Real - Time Collaborative applicaiton sharing platform for distributed groups.

If you wish minute an online meeting with your team working a away from you or want to schedule tasks and timelines collaboratively and achieve the same result you would have, had you guys met in some conference room, then this may be for you. Think about a product that allows groups to chat and use stand alone applications together and at the same time! Available at www.samepage.in , the service aims to be an online platform that will allow distributed people to perform activities together.

Thats the proposition unveiled by Azri Technologies , a web services start up, at the Techcrunch50 conference today. Available at www.samepage.in , the service aims to be an online platform that will allow distributed people to perform activites together. Samepage is an online chat platform integrated to a task scheduler and a note taker that can be used collaboratively for making conversations productive.

Though the application suite is being launched with the ‘task scheduler’ and ‘note taker’ application set, the samepage platform is in the process of putting together an application suite having various applications that can be collaboratively used. The start-up has envisioned more exciting applications to be added to its Native Application Suite. However the service, which is currently in the private beta mode, is looking at user traction and feedback to drive its future product evolution.
